Bank Employees Seek to Unionize

Yerry Says Bid Has Gone to Washington for Local Charter

A first step toward possible unionization of employees of local financial institutions was reported today as city bankers were still undecided on the proposal to remain closed on Saturdays.

The employees' bid for a charter in the American Federation of Labor has been forwarded to Washington, George E. Yerry, Jr., business agent of the Kingston Metal Trades Council, said today.

To Discuss Closing

Local bankers, meanwhile, are expected to make a final decision on the Saturday closing proposal at a meeting scheduled for 4 p.m., March 28 at the Kingston Trust Company office. The proposal was discussed by the bankers about three weeks ago, but final decision was delayed pending the forthcoming session.

Yerry, who said he had been approached by employees from several financial institutions on a proposal to organize a local union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, gave the following statement:

"A group of employees from several banks and financial institutions have requested a charter from the American Federation of Labor to cover their type of work. Their request has been submitted to the A. F. of L. in Washington for its consideration."

Ellenville Girl 3 1/2 Saved From Death In Shallow Pool

Cecelia Roberts Rescued Unconscious by Head of Water Department of Village

Cecelia Roberts, three- and-a-half-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Oran M. Roberts of Ellenville, had an escape from death when she was rescued from a three-foot pool of water south of the Veterans Memorial Hospital, Ellenville, about 11:40 Sunday morning. Dr. Roberts said today.

The little girl was unconscious, was not breathing and her flesh was turning black when she was taken from the water by Joseph Burbanck, superintendent of the Ellenville Water Department, who happened to be near the scene at the time and saw what first he thought was an old coat floating in the water. Investigating more closely, when he saw the coat apparently jerk, he discovered the little girl and rushed her immediately to the hospital, which is but a few hundred feet away, and where resuscitatory methods undertaken at once proved successful.

The doctor said that the fact that the girl picked up the little girl up by her feet and carried her with her head hanging down as he ran to the hospital undoubtedly was a large factor in saving her life, as the jolting did much to help expel the water from her lungs. At that, he said, had the rescue been delayed 30 seconds longer, it would have been too late.

No Serious Effects

This morning Cecelia was reported to be tired and exhausted.

Communists Can Be Cut From Jobs

Supreme Court Backs Civil Service in Ousting Reds

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The Supreme Court today in effect upheld the right of the Civil Service Commission to fire a government employee on grounds he is a Communist sympathizer.

The court refused to review protests by Morton Friedman, who was ousted from a job with the War Relocation Authority by order of the Civil Service Commission. The refusal leaves in effect rulings by lower federal courts which upheld the commission's order.

Friedman in appealing to the Supreme Court said he was fired on a basis of a "black list" which he stated "is now proceeding in the government service and elsewhere."

Legislature Will Decide Fate of Bills On Which Controversy Is Centered

By HENRY LEADER

Albany, N. Y., March 17 (AP)—The legislature will decide tonight the fate of controversial bills that would give employers $118,000,000 in tax rebates, establish grievance machinery for state employees and curb plural nominations for public office.

Before final adjournment, scheduled for 5 p.m. tomorrow, the legislature also will act on:

1. The supplemental budget, which includes salary increases for department heads, the chief aides and some members of Governor Dewey's executive staff.

2. Proposed referendum on constitutional amendments to extend the term of senators from two to four years and permit the legislators to raise their salaries beyond the present constitutional limit of $2,500.

3. A proposed referendum on authorization of a $135,000,000 loan fund to complete the flow-rent

La Guardia Says U. S. Cash for Greek Army

New York, March 17 (AP)—Former Mayor F. H. La Guardia says the funds President Truman last week asked for Greece and Turkey, "cannot be for food."

"Turkey has exportable surpluses," the former UNRRA director said in a radio (WJZ) broadcast. He contended that funds for aiding Greece were included in an earlier $250,000,000 request of Congress for aid for needy countries.

La Guardia said the President sought money "to bolster the army of Greece."

Five New Housing Projects Opened For War Veterans

Fifty Family Units Ready at Newburgh for Families to Move In

New York, March 17 (P)—The opening of five new emergency housing projects for veterans in New Rochelle, Rome, Newburgh and two in Nassau county, was announced today by Commissioner Herman T. Stiehm of the State Division of Housing.

The five projects, to accommodate more than 2,000 veterans, their wives and children, were built under the state's $65,000,000 emergency housing program. All have central heat, private baths and showers and individual kitchenettes.

Stiehm said 27 families have been notified they may move in to the Camp Santini project in Nassau county, which eventually will house 176 families. Louis J. McMahon of Hempstead is managing agent at Camp Santini, which during the war was used for personnel attached to Mitchell Field.

Eighteen of 120 units are complete at the former U. S. Navy training station at Lido Beach, also in Nassau county. George A. L. Duffy of Long Beach will manage the Lido Beach project. Jagow and Heidebrecht of Hempstead designed both Nassau county projects, and the contractor was the Andrew Weston company of Woodmere.

In the 99-family New Rochelle development, eight units were ready for occupancy. Former barracks buildings from Rockland State Hospital were used for the building. See Sullivan, Jr., will manage the project. Hart, Jernan and Associates, New York city, were the architects, and the contractor was the Delval Construction Company of Scarsdale.

Barracks from the Syracuse Army Air Base were rebuilt in the 50-unit Newburgh project, where 18 units are ready for occupancy. J. Percy Hankins, Newburgh, was the architect, and the J. J. Figgarty firm of Newburgh built the project.

Republicans Favor Hoover Be Named To Direct Relief

Proposal Also Is Made That Truman Report Aid Program to United Nations

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Fresh Republican proposals arose today that President Truman (1) officially report his Greek-Turkey aid program to the United Nations and (2) designate Herbert Hoover to direct relief activities in the two countries.

As Congress awaited a legislative blueprint on the president's program to spend $400,000,000 in bolstering the Mediterranean nations against threats of Communism, Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), voiced concern at any "by-passing" of the U. N. He said he thinks a "frank statement" of American intentions should be made directly to the international organization.

At the same time, Senator Moore (R-Okla.), suggested that Hoover, who recently completed a European food survey, be named to direct relief and rehabilitation expenditures which will go along with the limited military aid Mr. Truman promised the two countries.

Most members of Congress, meanwhile, awaited with mounting interest the imminent return of Paul Porter from his economic mission to Greece and of Ambassadors Lincoln MacVeagh and Edwin C. Wilson from Athens and Ankara, respectively.

Almost simultaneously with word that the former O.P.A. chief had left for home yesterday to submit his findings to Mr. Truman, diplomatic officials disclosed that the two envoys also were ordered back for consultations.

Porter seemed certain to be called before congressional committees for direct questioning on data which he said at Athens should provide this country "with the factual basis for further defining its policy in regard to Greece."

It appeared likely that MacVeagh and Wilson also would be invited to testify in line with the growing congressional desire for all possible information behind the historic foreign policy shift.

Would Supervise Acts

Moore said he thinks that if the United States extends aid to Greece and Turkey, it ought to make certain that relief and rehabilitation expenditures are supervised in the best interests of building up democracy in those nations.

"We need someone to direct this work in whom the whole country can have confidence," the Oklahoma Senator said. "I think former President Hoover is that man."

After a White House visit last Wednesday, however, Hoover told reporters that "under no possible circumstances" would he accept any such role. "At my time in life," he added, "I have reached the stage of advice and consultation."

Hoover's suggestion that Congress have a say in the matter was continued on Page Seven

Bevin Is Reported to Be In Favor of Rejecting Molotov Stand on China

U. S. Asks Wider Participation by Small Countries in Drafting Peace Treaty for Germany; Vishinsky Balks, Objects to Turkish Role

Moscow, March 17 (AP)—The Foreign Ministers Council convened for its seventh session today amid expectations that Prime Minister Stalin and U. S. Secretary of State Marshall soon would have a meeting which might have a far-reaching effect on Soviet-American relations.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was reported to have drafted a letter to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov rejecting Molotov's proposal for a special conference on China. Bevin took a stand similar to Marshall's but in addition was reported to have stressed that Britain viewed the Chinese matter as primarily between the United States and Russia.

Some diplomats said Bevin's reported letter showed a British trend toward a secondary role in issues on which she could gracefully seek a neutral line.

In a meeting of Deputy Foreign Ministers the United States launched a plea for wider participation by smaller nations in drafting the peace for Germany. Ambassador Robert Murphy urged a formula that would admit 26 countries, instead of the four powers and 18 smaller countries heretofore invited to present their views to the deputies at London. Murphy's list added Mexico, Bolivia, Iran and the Philippines.

Murphy was opposed by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, who said he wanted each nation approved separately rather than admitted by a general formula. He said he did not object to Iran.

In objecting to a French proposal on the same subject, Vishinsky attacked any participation by Turkey and quoted what he said were the words of a United States politician that "turkey grew fat on the war."

Vishinsky objected to a British proposal to set up four committees consisting of representatives of the Big Four and each of the 18 smaller states represented at London to handle various treaty-drafting chores. Vishinsky said the British plan was a "large, deep sea with no shores" and would turn the drafting committees into debating societies which would never accomplish anything.

The second week of meetings here to prepare peace treaties with Germany and Austria—promised to speed up the work considerably. These events were in prospect.

The conference was scheduled to buckle down today to the real issues—economic unity and reparations—which have divided the western powers and the Soviet Union in Germany almost since the war's end.

Observers here said the agreement none too bright and said a deadlock might show up promptly.

Second: This is about the time in Stalin usually invites each visiting foreign minister to call for a talk. While Marshall never tips off his moves ahead of time, he was believed fully prepared to discuss new U. S. actions in regard to Greece and Turkey and stress that the U. S. viewed the situation with concern.

President Truman urged Congress last Wednesday to earmark $400,000,000 for financial and economic assistance to Greece and Turkey in line with a policy of supporting "free peoples who are resisting attempted subjugation by armed minorities or by outside pressures."

Third: After Bevin's expected reply to Molotov's proposal for talks on China, Molotov was expected to say whether he was willing to accept the proposition that the three should merely exchange reports on execution of their obligations under the big-three December 1945 agreement which favored a "united and democratic China under the national government," "broad participation by democratic elements" and "cessation of civil strife."

Long Fight For Span Is Successful

Senator Wicks Cautions Time Will Be Factor in Completing Bridge Planning

Extends Authority

Bridge Authority Gets Time Extension, Two Added Members

Governor Thomas E. Dewey this afternoon will sign the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge bill.

The Governor's signature was to be affixed to the measure in Executive Chambers, State Capitol, in the presence of Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Kingston Republican, and Assemblyman Ernest I. Hatfield, Dutchess county Republican.

Senator Wicks, whose voice expressed gratification at the successful climax of his long fight to win a span over the Hudson for residents of Ulster and Dutchess counties, said, "Tell our good friends the bridge bill will be signed. Gov. Dewey has kept faith with all of us and the manner in which he watched the progress of the bill and suggested amendments speaks well for the high opinion he has of the project."

Not by Fall of '47

"There is one thing we must remember," Senator Wicks cautioned, "and that is we mustn't expect that by next fall we'll be riding over to Dutchess county on the bridge."

When asked how long the project would take before its completion, Senator Wicks said, "borings, designing, preparation of blueprints, writing specifications, letting of bids and such important work will take from eighteen to twenty-four months. The construction will take at least three years, probably longer."

"At any rate, we'll have our bridge bill in the form of a law. The normal course of events will take care of the structure. We have nothing to worry about."

Extends Authority

The bill provides extension of the Bridge Authority, increases its membership from three to five and implements financing. It also cuts off discontinuance of the Kingston-Rhinecliff ferry when the bridge is placed in operation.

Senator Wicks has worked steadily for the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge bill and last year, following Governor Dewey's veto memorandum, he said, "We won't give up."

Governor Dewey in a recent telegram to Senator Wicks said he would welcome the erection of the span, since it would open both the east and west shores of the river to a more ready means of transportation and communication, and would be of increased cultural advancement to residents in both areas.

The Governor's 1946 veto of the bridge bill was based upon certain financial arrangements which he thought should be changed.

Douglas Visits Attlee

London, March 17 (AP)—Lewis W. Douglas, whose declarations of confidence in Britain's future won him a favorable newspaper reception as the new American ambassador, paid a combination business and personal call on Prime Minister Attlee today. The business involved the strict protocol of getting his ambassadorial status on an official basis. The personal side involved a friendly chat with Attlee, who set aside 45 minutes for the engagement at No. 10 Downing street.

14 Dead in London Storm

London, March 17 (AP)—A toll of 14 deaths and property damage of millions of dollars was leveled by high winds which swept in from the Atlantic last night and blew themselves out over a still flooded and snowbound Britain today. Milder weather was forecast by the air ministry, although "considerable rains and gales" were expected tomorrow. The night winds attained a velocity of 98 miles an hour at times, uprooting trees, derailing buildings and wrecking houses.

Temporary Layoff Is Reported at G-E Plant, Saugerties

Lack of Parts Is Held Responsible; Some Employees Have Been Recalled

Lack of parts at the General Electric Company plant at Saugerties has been responsible for the temporary layoff of some of the employees, it was stated today. The majority of the employees will return to work probably next week. Some of those who were laid off have already been recalled, the plant manager reported.

At the present time, people are employed at the West Bridge street plant, it was stated, and prospects for the future are good. Failure of materials to arrive resulted in the shifting of some workmen to other jobs and when that work was completed several employees were temporarily laid off pending arrival of parts. As soon as materials arrive employees will be called back. The layoff was termed "temporary" by plant officials who stated that certain materials could not be procured when needed and slow arrival made necessary these temporary lay-offs.

Calcutta Disorder

Calcutta, March 17 (AP)—Police patrolled the streets of Calcutta today following communal disorders last night in which almost a score of persons were injured during the storming of buses. An official report said one person was killed, but police denied this.

EWig Is Elected To Council Post

Corporation Counsel Is President of Lodges in Upstate Areas

Corporation Counsel Arthur B. Ewig, past president of Zephaniah Lodge, No. 131, B'nai B'rith of this city, was elected president of the Up-State Council B'nai B'rith at the annual conference held at Hotel Onondaga Saturday and Sunday. The Up-State Council represents all lodges of the state outside Greater New York. Mr. Ewig succeeded Arthur Goldberg of Buffalo.

The next conference will be held in Kingston next fall, probably in October. At the Syracuse conference approximately 150 delegates were present, representing 30 up-state lodges and a membership of about 6,600. Because of the nearness of Kingston to New York city it is expected that the attendance at the conference in Kingston next fall will probably be greater than that at Syracuse.

Mr. Ewig is a trustee of the Kingston B'nai B'rith lodge.

Election Law Bills Are Signed

Election Law Revision Bills Signed by Dewey

Albany, N. Y., March 17 (AP)—Governor Dewey today signed a bill extending the privilege of central registration to all voters in the state.

The bill amends the election law to allow voters in communities of less than 5,000 to register personally with their county board of election from June 1 through Sept. 20 before a general election. Previously, such registration had been permitted in larger communities.

Other bills Dewey signed made changes in the election laws which:

Permit another candidate to be nominated if a candidate who has received a plurality in a primary election dies before noon of the Tuesday prior to election.

Authorize a board of elections, upon proper proof and upon notice to county chairmen, to register a voter if he applied personally on registration day in his district and was unlawfully denied the right to register.

The election law revision bills were authored by Senator Charles O. Burney, Jr., Buffalo Republican. Other measures signed: Limit until April 1, 1948, a provision that in factories operating on multiple shifts, females over 21 may be employed until midnight. Specifying that reflecting city and village speed limit signs, if readily visible at night, are sufficient in lieu of illuminated signs. Permit a public employee back from military service to take a promotion examination by Dec. 31, 1947, even though he fails to request such a test within 60 days after his return.

Wants Staff Requirements

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) proposed today that Congress lay down staff requirements before it accepts "the lesser of two evils" and extends aid to Greece and Turkey. The Massachusetts senator, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he believes Congress must support the president in principle because with any repudiation of Mr. Truman's stand, "the last hope of ever organizing peace would vanish."

Warren Kias, director of athletics at Kingston High School, said this morning that efforts will be made to charter a bus to take local fans to the Class A finals of the Section Nine tournament, Tuesday night, in Middletown where Kingston and Suffern will play. Court Orders Lewis Case Mandate Be Issued March 20

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The Supreme Court ordered today that its mandate in the John L. Lewis case be issued on March 20—11 days ahead of customary time. The government had asked the court to act immediately to enforce its decision against Lewis and the United Mine workers.

The court's decision requires that within five days after its mandate is issued, Lewis must withdraw a notice to the Mine Workers that the union's working contract with the government is ended.

If not, it will cost the United Mine Workers $2,800,000.

When upholding the contempt convictions of Lewis and the U. M. W. for disregarding a U. S. District Court order against last fall's coal strike, the high court reduced a $3,500,000 fine against the union to $700,000.

It said, however, that the original amount of the fine should be collected if Lewis did not withdraw the order.

A $10,000 fine against Lewis was upheld.

The effect of today's ruling is to bar the door against a new walk-out on March 31.

Lewis ended last fall's strike by ordering the miners to work until March 31.

Under normal procedure, the Supreme Court's mandate (order in connection with the contempt decision) would not have reached the lower court until March 31.

That would have left five days during which the miners could have remained away from the pit without being subject to the full amount of the original fine.

Ellenville Girl 3 1/2 Red Cross Raises $675 in Eleventh

County Figure Reaches $14,680 Latest Report Shows

The accident happened on the Westwood Hills development, begun last year and which takes in a considerable parcel of land, situated in the southwestern limits of the village of Ellenville. A street has been graded, running the length of the development and connecting with Circle avenue, just south of the hospital. Digging of the trench for a water main was begun last fall and work continued on it recently. The trench runs through a considerable ledge of rocks and it was at the bottom of this, where water had collected in a pool that the accident occurred.

Dr. Roberts had gone to the hospital to call on his patients there about 10:45 Sunday morning. He parked his car and left Cecilia and her brother, Peter, aged 6 years, to play about the lawn.

Cecilia, it appears, had wandered down to where the trench for the water main had been dug. Some feet from the sidewalk on Circle avenue, where the water runs from the trench into the gutter, it was shallow. As children do she began to play in the water and all went well until she reached a point some further distance along where the water suddenly became much deeper. She tried in vain to escape, but hampered by sticky mud that had washed down into the pool and the depth of the water, she soon became exhausted and sank unconscious.

The arrival of Mr. Burhans—Dr. Roberts sees it as providential—was due to the fact that he is obliged to move from his present quarters and was in that vicinity with hopes of finding a house he could rent.

Dr. Roberts said this morning he considered it "a matter of gross negligence on the part of village authorities" in that such a situation was allowed to remain as it was, with "no guards or protection for the public."

New York, March 17 (AP)—An Arizona promoter, described by New York Attorney General Nathan L. Goldstein as having been convicted in New York in 1935 for stock misrepresentation is fighting extradition to New York to answer charges arising from the alleged sale of copper mine stock.

Goldstein said last night that the promoter, Constantine Vincent Ricciardi, 38, and Andrew Jackson Dougherty, vice president and treasurer of Southwestern Mines, Inc., Douglas, Ariz., have been indicted on four counts each of grand larceny.

Formerly, March 17 (AP)—An Arizona promoter, described by New York Attorney General Nathan L. Goldstein as having been convicted in New York in 1935 for stock misrepresentation is fighting extradition to New York to answer charges arising from the alleged sale of copper mine stock.

Goldstein said last night that the promoter, Constantine Vincent Ricciardi, 38, and Andrew Jackson Dougherty, vice president and treasurer of Southwestern Mines, Inc., Douglas, Ariz., have been indicted on four counts each of grand larceny.

Forman Denies

1943, Gottfried telephoned him and arranged a meeting at the New York city hotel a day or two later. Forman said he met Gottfried, who was accompanied by George Long, former manager of the Ellenville plant. He reported to Gottfried the results of the Washington conference, he said, and Gottfried urged him to continue his negotiations.

Forman said he told Gottfried that his expenses up to that point amounted to $300 and that he would not return to Washington again until the money was paid. Gottfried commented that the money would be paid, Forman said.

Long Sought Help, He Says

Long later contacted Forman in the latter's Kingston law office, the witness said, and explained that he was very anxious to keep the plant's employees busy all year round rather than merely during the summer months, and asked Forman if he could be of assistance in obtaining an extra sugar allowance for the manufacture of fondant.

Forman said he told Long that he knew nothing about the routine of obtaining sugar allowances, but that he would make inquiries about it. He said he did inquire about the matter, and later informed Long that it would require the filing of numerous applications before the local ration board in Kingston, the Albany O.P.A., the regional O.P.A. in New York city and the O.P.A. headquarters in Washington, and would require several hearings.

Set Fee at $1,500

Forman said he told Long that he would not undertake the filing of such applications unless he received a substantial fee in advance. Forman testified he mentioned $1,500 as the probable fee, but that he later testified that he told him that the Ellenville plant was losing money and that he was not interested in investing any more money there, so that Forman never did anything in connection with obtaining extra sugar.

Forman testified that he had never had a conversation with Stanton concerning the O.P.A. investigation, "or any investigation which Stanton made," and that he "never told Long that Stanton was my man."

Previous government witnesses, including Stanton, had given such testimony. "Did you ever ask Stanton to do anything improper as an investigator?" asked Joseph L. Delaney, defense attorney.

"No, I never did," replied Forman.

"Did you ever promise Stanton any money, and did you ever give Stanton any money?" asked the defense attorney.

Forman testified that on March 29, 1943, after the session he had had with Gottfried in New York city, Long walked into his law office, placed some bills on his desk and told Forman about what would happen to Long and the other employees if Gottfried disposed of the Ellenville plant. Forman said he suggested that Long discuss that matter with Gottfried.

Expenses $50 Short

The witness said he counted the money, found it to be $250, and said that he handed it back to Long, saying, "my expenses were $300. You can tell Gottfried that I will do nothing further in connection with the plant until I get $300."

The witness said that Long expressed surprise and said "what do you think of that guy—meaning Gottfried—that's the way he handed it to me." Forman said, however, that Long told him to keep the money and that he would see that he received the additional $50. Forman said he received a $50 check by mail a little later.

Explains Deposits

Delaney questioned Forman about certain bank deposits. Forman had made on April 8, 1943, and prior to that date. Forman testified that he had deposited the $250 in cash, together with $1,000 in cash and a $500 check, adding that the $1,000 in cash represented services rendered Louis Siller and that the $500 check represented partial payment of his annual salary from the I. and S. Realty Company.

Forman explained the deposit of another check for $1,000 as partial payment of his annual salary from the J. Harold Realty Company.

Under cross-examination by assistant U. S. Attorney Frederick H. Block, Forman admitted that he had neglected to report $3,000 in income for the year 1943 when filing his income tax return in March 1944.

Questioned on Record

Block showed him a record of receipts and disbursements, which Forman admitted he kept personally, and upon which record he based his income tax return. Forman admitted the receipt of 3 checks from the Pleasant Valley Packing Company during 1943, for services incident to obtaining a slaughtering permit for the company from the O.P.A. The record kept by Forman, the witness admitted, showed that two of the checks, one for $1,000, the other for $2,000, were entered, but that the third check, for $2,000, was not entered.

Forman then explained that the third check was entered later, on March 29, 1944, after he had filed his income tax report for 1943.

Would Continue Controls

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Two top government officials today told the House banking committee that controls on rents and leasing should be extended. Maj. Gen. H. B. Fleming, temporary controls administration, proposed continuance of "essential" rent controls until June 30, 1948. Housing Expediter Frank R. Crecdon told the committee that only those controls necessary to get the housing job done are being used now.

"The Company agrees..."

BEFORE the New York Stock Exchange admits the securities of any company to its trading list, that company enters into a number of agreements with the Exchange, all in the interest of the investing public.

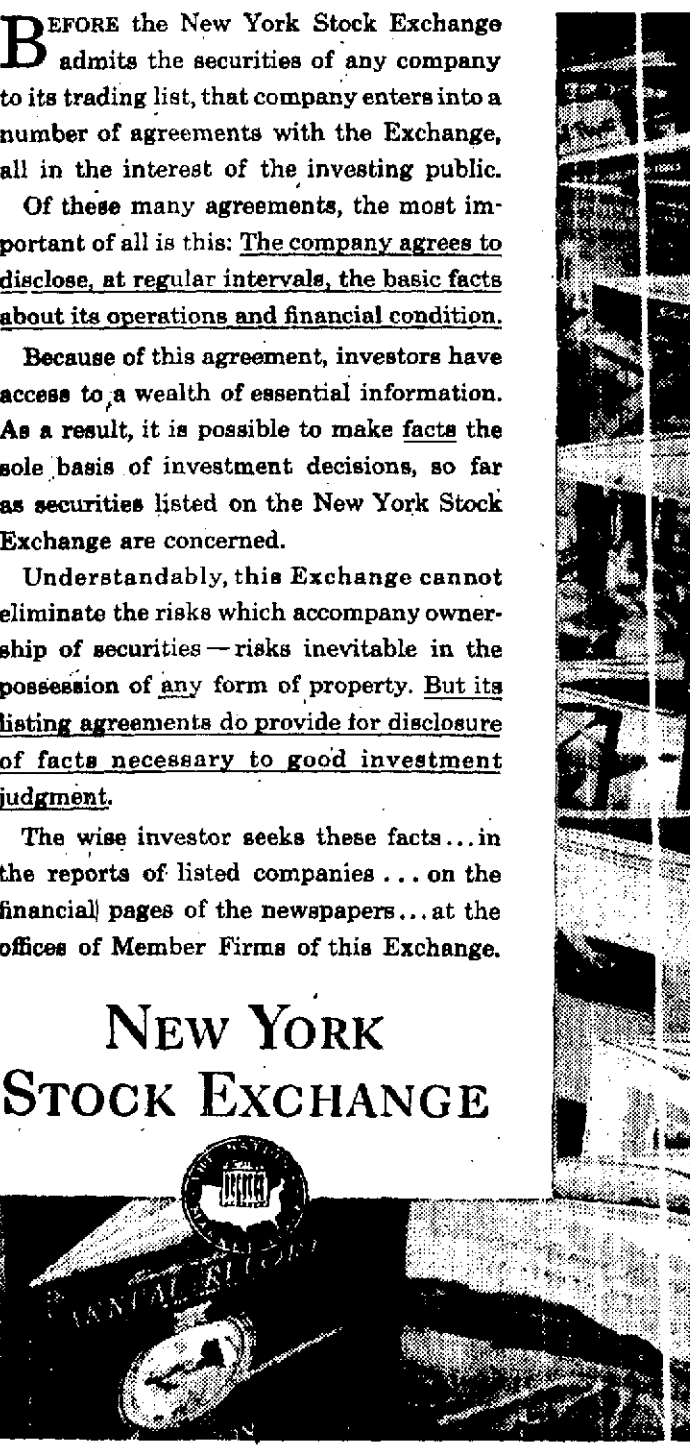

Of these many agreements, the most important of all is this: The company agrees to disclose, at regular intervals, the basic facts about its operations and financial condition.

Because of this agreement, investors have access to a wealth of essential information. As a result, it is possible to make facts the sole basis of investment decisions, so far as securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange are concerned.

Understandably, this Exchange cannot eliminate the risks which accompany ownership of securities—risks inevitable in the possession of any form of property. But its listing agreements do provide for disclosure of facts necessary to good investment judgment.

The wise investor seeks these facts... in the reports of listed companies... in the financial pages of the newspapers... at the offices of Member Firms of this Exchange.

Get Set for Spring

The winds of March are tipping hats
They twist and turn like acrobats
But when they've had their little dancing
We'll find ourselves an inch from Spring.

The winds delight in playing tricks
And dance like flaming candlewicks
As winter tries so hard to stay
To see what life is like in May.

The sun grows bright and climbs the sky
To make the melting snowbanks cry
Each morning dawns with added light
And sunsets challenge wings of night.

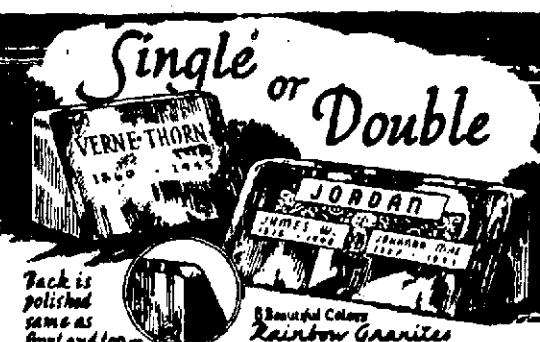

The current styles no longer please
In spite of winter's chilling breeze...
Our hearts are set on April charm
When love and life go arm in arm.

It's just a step to happy days
And though we'll meet a few delays
It won't be long 'til robins sing
So take a tip... get set for Spring!

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) proposed today that Congress lay down stiff requirements before it accepts the lesser of two evils and extends aid to Greece and Turkey. Court Orders Lewis Case Mandate Be Issued March 20

Washington, March 17 (AP)—The Supreme Court ordered today that its mandate in the John L. Lewis case be issued on March 20—11 days ahead of customary time.

The government had asked the court to act immediately to force its decision against Lewis and the United Mine workers.

The court's decision requires that within five days after its mandate is issued Lewis must withdraw a notice to the Mine Workers that the union's working contract with the government is ended.

If not, it will cost the United Mine Workers $2,800,000.

When upholding the contempt convictions of Lewis and the U.M.W. for disregarding a U.S. District Court order against last fall's coal strike, the high court reduced a $3,500,000 fine against the union to $700,000.

It said, however, that the original amount of the fine should be collected if Lewis did not withdraw the order.

A $10,000 fine against Lewis was upheld.

The effect of today's ruling is to bar the door against a new walk-out on March 31.

Lewis ended last fall's strike by ordering the miners to work until March 31.

Under normal procedure, the Supreme Court's mandate (order of execution with the contempt decision) would not have reached the lower court until March 31.

That would have left five days during which the miners could have remained away from the pits without being subject to the full amount of the original fine.

Ellenville Girl 3½

from her dreadful experience, but was talking and so far does not appear to have suffered serious effects.

The accident happened on the Westwood Hills development, begun last year and which takes in a considerable parcel of land, situated in the southwestern limits of the village of Ellenville. A street has been graded, running the length of the development and connecting with Circle avenue, just south of the hospital. Digging of the trench for a water main was begun last fall and work continued on it recently. The trench runs through a considerable ledge of rocks and it was at the bottom of this, where water had collected in a pool that the accident occurred.

Dr. Roberts had gone to the hospital to call on his patients there about 10:45 Sunday morning. He parked his car and left Cecilia and her brother, Peter, aged 6 years, to play about the lawn.

Cecilia, it appears, had wandered down to where the trench for the water main had been dug. Some feet from the sidewalk on Circle avenue, where the water runs from the trench into the gutter, it was shallow. As children do she began to play in the water and all went well until she reached a point some further distance along where the water suddenly became much deeper. She tried in vain to escape, but hampered by sticky mud that had washed down into the pool and the depth of the water, she soon became exhausted and sank unconscious.

The arrival of Mr. Burhan—Dr. Roberts sees it as providential—was due to the fact that he is obliged to move from his present quarters and was in that vicinity with hopes of finding a house he could rent.

Dr. Roberts said this morning he

Fights Extradition

New York, March 17 (AP)—An Arizona promoter, described by New York Attorney General Nathan Goldstein as having been convicted in New York in 1935 for stock misrepresentation, is fighting extradition to New York to answer charges arising from the alleged sale of copper mine stock.

Goldstein said last night that the promoter, Constantine Vincent Ricciardi, 58, and Andrew Jackson Dougherty, vice president and treasurer of Southwestern Mines, Inc., Douglas, Ariz., have been indicted on four counts each of grand larceny.

considered it "a matter of gross negligence on the part of village authorities," in that such a situation was allowed to remain as it was, with "no guards or protection for the public."

1943. Gottfried telephoned him again, arranged for a meeting in a New York city hotel a day or two later. Forman said he met Gottfried, who was accompanied by George Long, former manager of the Ellenville plant. He reported to Gottfried the results of the Washington conference, he said, and Gottfried urged him to continue his negotiations.

Forman said he told Gottfried that his expenses up to that point amounted to $300, and that he would not return to Washington again until the money was paid. Gottfried commented that the money would be paid, Forman said.

Long sought help, he says. Long later contacted Forman in the latter's Kingston law office, the witness said, and explained that he was very anxious to keep the plant's employees busy all year round rather than merely during the summer months, and asked Forman if he could be of assistance in obtaining an extra sugar allowance for the manufacture of fondant.

Forman said he told Long that he knew nothing about the routine of obtaining sugar allowances, but that he would make inquiries about it. He said he did inquire about the matter and later informed Long that it would require the filing of numerous applications before the local ration board in Kingston, the Albany O.P.A., the regional O.P.A. in New York city and the O.P.A. headquarters in Washington, and would require several hearings.

Set Fee at $1,500

Forman said he told Long that he would not undertake the filing of such applications unless he received a substantial fee in advance. Forman testified he mentioned $1,500 as the probable fee.

Later, Forman testified, Gottfried told him that the Ellenville plant was losing money and that he was not interested in investing any more money there, so that Forman never did anything in connection with obtaining extra sugar.

Forman testified that he had never had a conversation with Stanton concerning the O.P.A. investigation, "or any investigation which Stanton made," and that he "never told Long that Stanton was my man."

Previous government witnesses, including Stanton, had given such testimony.

"Did you ever ask Stanton to do anything improper as an investigator?" asked Joseph L. Delaney, defense attorney.

"No, I never did," replied Forman.

"Did you ever promise Stanton any money, and did you ever give Stanton any money?" asked the defense attorney.

"I never did," replied Forman.

Forman testified that on March 29, 1943, after the session he had had with Gottfried in New York city, he walked into his law office, placed some bills on his desk and told Forman about what would happen to Long and the other employees if Gottfried disposed of the Ellenville plant. Forman said he suggested that Long discuss that matter with Gottfried.

Expenses $50 Short

The witness said he counted the money found it to be $250, and said that he handed it back to Long, saying, "my expenses were $300. You can tell Gottfried that I will do nothing further in connection with the plant until I get $300."

The witness said that Long expressed surprise and said what do you think of that guy meaning Gottfried—that's the way he handed it to me," Forman said, however, that Long told him to keep the money and that he would see that he received the additional $50. Forman said he received a $50 check by mail a little later.

Explains Deposits

Delaney questioned Forman about certain bank deposits Forman had made on April 8, 1943, and prior to that date. Forman testified that he had deposited the $250 in cash, together with $1,000 in cash and a $500 check, adding that the $1,000 in cash represented services rendered Louis Siller, and that the $500 check represented partial payment of his annual salary from the I. and S. Realty Company.

Forman explained the deposit of another check for $1,000 as partial payment of his annual salary from the J. Harold Realty Company.

Under cross-examination by assistant U.S. Attorney Frederick H. Block, Forman admitted that he had neglected to report $2,000 in income for the year 1943 when filing his income tax return in March 1944.

Questioned on Record

Block showed him a record of receipts and disbursements, which Forman admitted he kept personally, and upon which record he based his income tax return. Forman admitted the receipt of 3 checks from the Pleasant Valley Packing Company during 1943, for services incident to obtaining a slaughtering permit for the company from the O.P.A. The record kept by Forman, the witness admitted, showed that two of the checks, one for $1,000, the other for $2,000, were entered, but that the third check, for $2,000, was not entered.

Forman then explained that the third check was entered later, on March 29, 1944, after he had filed his income tax report for 1943.

Would Continue Controls

Washington, March 17 (AP)—Two top government officials today told the House banking committee that controls on rents and housing should be extended. Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, temporary controls administrator, proposed continuance of "essential" housing controls until June 30, 1948. Housing Expediter Frank R. Creedon told the committee that only those controls necessary to get the housing job done are being used now.

admits the securities of any company to its trading list, that company enters into a number of agreements with the Exchange, all in the interest of the investing public.

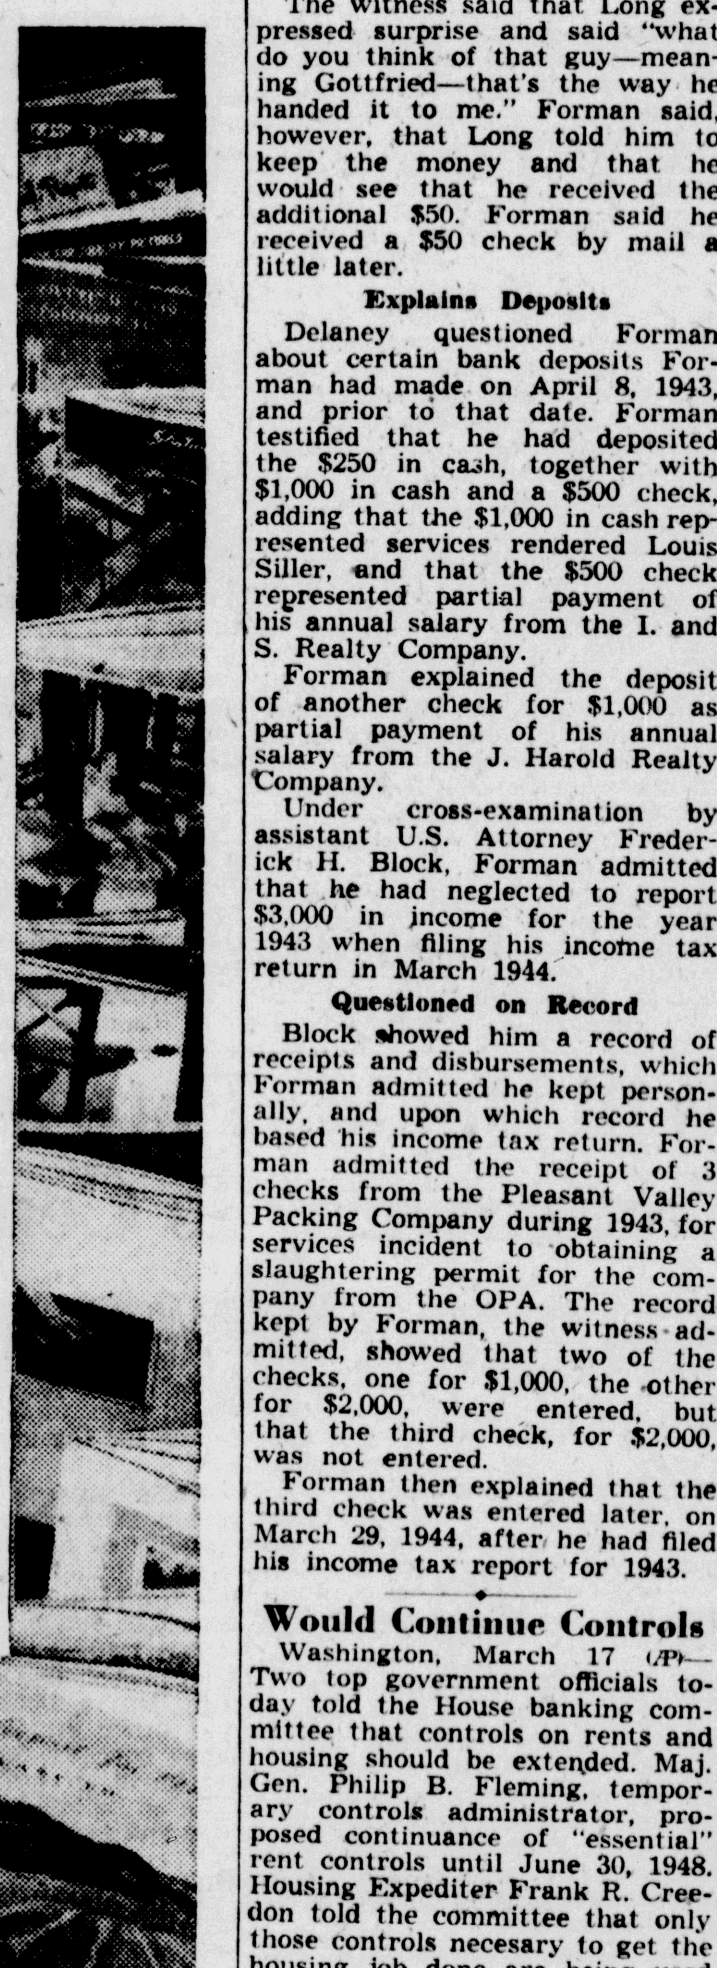

Of these many agreements, the most important of all is this: The company agrees to disclose, at regular intervals, the basic facts about its operations and financial condition.

Because of this agreement, investors have access to a wealth of essential information. As a result, it is possible to make facts the sole basis of investment decisions, so far as securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange are concerned.

Evening Verse— (For Your Scrapbook) By DANIEL L. O'CONNOR

Get Set for Spring

The winds of March are tipping hats
They twist and turn like acrobats
But when they've had their little fling
We'll find ourselves an inch from Spring.

The winds delight in playing tricks
And dance like flaming candlewicks
As winter tries so hard to stay
To see what life is like in May.

The sun grows bright and climbs the sky
To make the melting snowbanks cry.
Each morning dawns with added light
And sunsets challenge wings of night.

The current styles no longer please
In spite of winter's chilling breeze...
Our hearts are set on April's charm
When love and life go arm in arm.

It's just a step to happy days
And though we'll meet a few delays
It won't be long 'til robins sing
So take a tip...get set for Spring!

Red Cross 'Greatest Mother of the World', Says Overseas Worker

Twice the Job On Hands Today As During War

Miss Bogert Points to Need for Funds for Carrying on Work at Home and Abroad

After three years of serving on an average of 900 servicemen a day with coffee and doughnuts and overseeing clubmobile units in the European Theatre of Operations, Miss Beatie Bogert says, "I do anything to help 'the greatest mother of the world', the American Red Cross."

"It has twice the job on its hands today as we had during the war," she continued. The servicemen have more leisure time. Everything overseas must come from home. The army can no longer request a factory or building for Red Cross use. These services in addition to all of the home service and disaster work need funds which are being raised through the current campaign ending this month.

Miss Bogert, who now makes her home in Hurley, served two years in a motor corps unit at Garden City, L. I., before volunteering for Red Cross work overseas. She was assigned to the clubmobile department and sent to England in January 1943. In all she served 35 months in England, Ireland, France, Luxembourg, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

On her dress uniform of R.A.F. blue she wears the insignia of the 9th Army with which she served the longest. She was supervisor of the 12th Army Group which served the First, Third, Seventh and Ninth Armies. Working under her direction were 800 American Red Cross girls managing 80 clubmobiles spread over three or four countries in the E.T.O.

"One clubmobile served an average of 900 boys a day," Miss Bogert reported in an interview with a Freeman reporter, "and when in France and Germany, we were able to get 'natives' to cook all night, we served as many as 1,500 in a day." The men were never charged for any clubmobile service, she said.

Two Dozen Per There were times when the men were limited to two doughnuts but as often as possible they could have all they wanted. "Four cups of coffee and two dozen doughnuts were nothing for a boy to eat," she acknowledged. Starting out in the morning each clubmobile would carry 50 gallons of water, 70 gallons of coffee already made, and as many doughnuts as could be piled in. The doughnut machines which went along with the units could make 400 an hour. "I made a million doughnuts the first three months," Miss Bogert calmly admitted, "and then I stopped counting them."

Drove to Front The clubmobiles served the men in outlying territories in England. On the Continent the girls drove to the front lines. Sometimes they were so close to the front that paper cups were substituted for tin so that the clicking could not be picked up by German listening posts. Proudly Miss Bogert reported that although the clubmobiles were 2½ ton trucks, not one of her girls ever turned one over. If the clubmobiles could not be taken to some group of men a jeep did the job.

31 to eight clubmobiles and two in a cinemobile. The average of three girls on a clubmobile would work out a schedule so that some one would be on duty from 4 a. m. to midnight each day. They lived in tents by pot belled stoves or tumbled into their trucks to sleep.

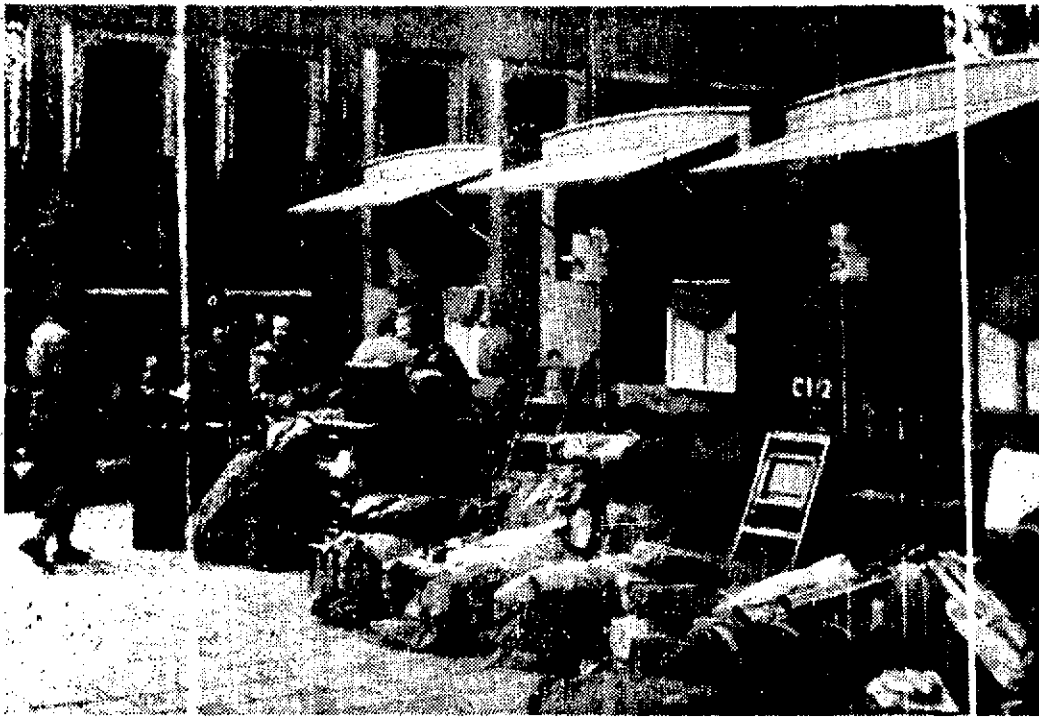

Bombed Out Sometimes they were quartered in buildings. However, one group of Miss Bogert's girls were bombed out of the same hotel in Holland three times in a week. Another time a shell hit so near the jeep Miss Bogert was driving that it bounced two feet off the road. At another time she drove through two towns before they had been captured.

Served Prisoners Wherever possible the girls served coffee and doughnuts on the docks as the transports came in or were leaving. Sometimes they could commandeer a PT boat to serve the navy in boats lying in the harbors.

CLUBMOBILE WITH TRAILER IN ENGLAND

AT BURIAL PLACE OF ST. PATRICK

Near Down Patrick and the burial place of St. Patrick, Ireland, the three American Red Cross girls, who drove the first clubmobile unit for serving American forces in that country, posed for this picture in May, 1943. From left are Edna Oxford, Madison, Fla.; Pauline McLaughlin, Garden City, L. I.; and BEATIE BOGERT, HURLEY. They are wearing the battle dress in which they worked on the clubmobiles. The uniforms were made in England of blue RAF cloth for warmth to replace the uniforms brought from this country. Miss Bogert says "It's too bad our feet were cut off in the photo. We always wore GI shoes."

the men lost as much as 90 pounds and could not be served the coffee and doughnuts before examination by army doctors.

In addition to the food served, each clubmobile was equipped with a loudspeaker and records for entertainment; as well as the important Red Cross stationery. Miss Bogert believed this to be one of the greatest services, supplying writing paper and materials to the men in the front lines. Most newspapers were also a most welcome gift from the Red Cross.

Another important service was the register on each truck listing boys according to their home states. In this way many brothers, relatives and friends found each other in the E.T.O. Several times the Red Cross girls also located relatives among the fighting forces.

Miss Fessenden Of local interest Miss Bogert brought word of Miss Anne Fessenden, daughter of Mrs. Newton Fessenden, 384 Fair Street, who "did a splendid job" for her with units at the docks in Cherbourg. Miss Fessenden has resigned from the Red Cross and is studying at the Sorbonne, Paris.

Miss Bogert praised the Red Cross Home Service Department for its work, part of which was sending messages between the fighting man and his home. While she was in the E.T.O. Civilian War Relief was mainly concerned in research, reporting conditions of the populace and clearing roads of civilians for movements of troops. Blood plasma from blood donated by the home folks through the Red Cross was one of the greatest contributions. Miss Bogert suggested, as she spoke of the speed in which it was transported, "I have seen plasma arrive on the battlefield in Germany 32 hours after it left the United States."

Refutes 'Gripes' "I think you will find very few boys from the E.T.O. who didn't at some time have Red Cross Service," Miss Bogert emphasized, in her statements refuting some

EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT

The American Red Cross is "The Greatest Mother in the World", declares Miss Beatie Bogert, of Hurley, a Red Cross worker who served both in this country and overseas, in an interview which appears elsewhere in this issue.

This interview with a worker who gives an eye-witness account of what the Red Cross has done and what it still has to do should stir every man and woman in Ulster County, who has neglected to subscribe to the Red Cross, to send in a pledge or contribution without any further delay.

Particularly important is the stressing of the vital work to be done by the Red Cross, since not a few have felt that with the war over need for funds is not so great. That this is a mistaken viewpoint and that the need remains is brought out forcefully in the interview.

Besides the peacetime service of the Red Cross when fire, flood, hurricane or epidemic strikes, much of the money contributed in this current campaign will go to aid soldiers and service folks and their families.

Knowing what the Red Cross has done and what it has yet to do, we should wait not longer but give generously now.

Ulster County's quota is $28,000. To date approximately $14,000 or one-half has been contributed.

One of the main benefits of having different political parties in this country is that it develops our characters. But what if, like some countries, we had thirty?

FEW GIVE-AWAY BABIES

There is a shortage of babies available for adoption. Public and private adoption agencies report the same situation in most parts of the country; long lists of would-be parents and not enough babies to meet the demand. In some agencies the requests for foster children are so numerous that the staff cannot keep up with the preliminary interviews of prospective parents. The adoption business has reached maximum heights since the close of the war and the return of veterans make it possible to count on a stable home set up. Oddly enough the housing scarcity seems not to have dulled the enthusiasm for acquisition of homeless children.

What a pleasant commentary these facts are on human nature. At this time in the world's history when there is so much to challenge the security of the home, so many obstacles and such heavy expenses connected with ordinary living, at such a time childless couples are clamoring to take on the responsibility of children not their own. It is good, also, that with no shortage of babies, people want to keep their own.

Crime breeds war and war breeds crime, but somehow there ought to be an end of it.

OLD NAMES DISAPPEARING

Some fine old names are disappearing from the map. Towns along the Dalmatian coast which bore Venetian names now see them replaced by Yugoslav equivalents, to emphasize the change in rule. Spalato, noted for its palace of the Roman emperor Diocletian, now gets the far uglier name of Split.

A large gap is left by the abolition of the old name Ragusa. Founded in the 3d century, Ragusa was long a link between Slavic and Italian civilizations. It managed to keep its independence, even when the Turks had overthrown Ragusa's far stronger neighbors, the Byzantine empire and the kingdom of Serbia. From Ragusan merchant ships the English language gets the name "ragusy", once spelled "ragusy", applied to a large boat carrying rich freight. Now Ragusa is to be renamed from the neighboring Slavic settlement of Dubrovnik.

This emphasis on the importance of having a city's name come from the language of its new rulers surprises Americans, who change

'These Days'

THE RIGHT TO STRIKE

Whenever any group in a free society takes excessive advantage of its legal rights to the disadvantage of the whole of society, legislative action becomes imperative to safeguard the nation from anarchy. Usually, as with American corporations, the group evading reason in pursuit of legal rights brings it woes upon itself.

This is precisely what has happened to the labor unions, particularly the C.I.O., which insisted upon rights without assuming obligations or responsibility.

The right to strike is as inviolable as the right of freedom of speech or of the press only so long as it does not limit the constitutional rights of others and only so long as it does not convert a free society into an anarchy. Obviously, a nation that will expend over $300,000,000,000 of its wealth to defend its sovereignty will not permit the collapse of its productive structure because its laws grant to a segment of the population special privileges. What legislative action can grant, legislative action can revoke.

That, in essence, is what has been happening to labor's special privilege during the past months, strengthened by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the John L. Lewis case. The issue there was that whether any law had transferred the authority of the courts to the United Mine Workers and to John L. Lewis personally. What the SEC did to Wall Street, current legislation will do to the unions. And on the whole, it will be beneficial because it will place moral restraints upon those who are incapable of restraining themselves. A free society professes self-restraint to enforced restraints, but will insist upon the latter should the former be in default.

The legislature of the State of New York has inevitably passed the Condon-Wadlin Bill placing full responsibility upon the workers for a strike in a government-owned enterprise, such as the schools, the police, the subway, etc. This measure does not forbid the strike, for obviously no one can be forced to work in a free society. But it gives the state the right automatically to dismiss those who strike, to refuse to increase the pay of the strikers in the event they are rehired and to make them ineligible for pay increases for three years thereafter. These workers may strike if they choose, but the responsibility is theirs. They can no longer strike and be paid for it. They can no longer strike and receive compensation for loss of time in any form, including retroactive pay.

This is sound law. It is a result of the excesses to which labor unions have gone in coercing governments to abide by their private decisions. It is also an inevitable concomitant of socialism. As long as industry is privately owned, the rights of ownership, management and labor are private and disturbances of these rights are judicial, but once industry is publicly owned, ownership, management and labor are public and every strike becomes a revolutionary action against the state. There are no strikes for this reason in Soviet Russia, where interruption of work is regarded as political sabotage and a strike comes under the category of counter-revolution. All totalitarian countries assumed a similar logical position.

Increased public ownership of the means of production and distribution and the services will narrow the field in which strikes are possible. For instance, a strike against Consolidated Edison is still a private matter between a private company and a union, but a strike against TVA would involve the sovereign powers of the United States.

But even a strike against a public service becomes too costly and dangerous in our society. The threatened nationwide telephone strike, scheduled for April, will not take place, for obviously the government will, immediately, even if special legislation is required, take over the telephone companies.

There is a domain in which the strike cannot be tolerated any more than murder can be tolerated. The "pursuit of happiness" may assume the right to murder, but no law acknowledges that freedom without the restraint of moral responsibility is either practical or possible. Similarly, the "right to strike" does not warrant the assumption that the country can be wrecked at the will of the wreckers. The principles involved are altogether clear.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE

You hear and read much about high blood pressure and how it may cause a head stroke (apoplexy) and heart stroke (coronary occlusion or thrombosis) but you do not often hear or read much about low blood pressure, yet low blood pressure with its symptoms is not uncommon.

High blood pressure is called hypertension and low blood pressure is called hypotension. Neither hypertension nor hypotension is called a disease; they are simply symptoms of some disturbance or disturbances, mild or severe. And, just as hypertension or increased blood pressure can be caused by the emotions or be due to an acute or chronic infection so also can low blood pressure, hypotension.

It is true that low blood pressure is a normal condition in some families the members of which live to a good old age, but they are the exceptions. Generally speaking low blood pressure is one symptom of a run down or weak condition.

In Clinical Medicine, S. Watson Smith, M. D., Consultant Physician, Royal Victoria and West Hants Hospital, Bournemouth, England, describes the symptoms of low blood pressure or hypotension:

1. Dizziness on change of position such as rising from a lying or sitting position occurring suddenly, with a feeling of fear and loss of self confidence.
2. Asthenic (weakness) attacks when, perhaps for the space of hours of a day, feelings of weakness overcome the patient, depriving him of physical but not mental strength.
3. Inability to remain standing beyond minutes without bringing on faintness, pallor, sweating, nausea and even loss of consciousness.
4. Poor circulation, inability to withstand the cold.
5. Pulsations of the heart beat felt in hands and feet.

The symptoms are common in young and middle-aged men of slender build, steady and competent though not aggressive; not found in overweights, women, or the laboring man.

7. Need much rest.

In regard to treatment Dr. Smith suggests the wearing of an abdominal belt or snug corset while the underlying cause—thin blood, infection, some disease of the system, emotional disturbances—is sought and necessary treatment given. Iron is the only medicine prescribed. Remember, low blood pressure is a symptom, not a disease.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Herbert Hoover's restrained report on the horrors inflicted on the German people by the American and British occupation zones reveals the United States in the role of a barbarian conqueror, even more brutal in victory today than the military and political, northern forces were eighty years ago in the beaten Confederate states. The people of the United States up to this time had had only a vague, though guilty apprehension, of the conditions which Mr. Hoover found.

His review is supplemented in a manner to humiliate Americans by a feature story published recently in the Saturday Evening Post by a young American woman, the wife of an army captain stationed in Berlin, who reveals a disgraceful condition not merely of contrast but of legalized looting by a few Americans. This officer's pay is $525 a month. They live in a furnished, 9-room house amid three million "slowly" arriving Germans in a city nearly 50 per cent destroyed. They have fresh meat seven days a week, milk and eggs and one-half ton of coal a month and gas and electricity without limit. And they are saving nearly three-fifths of the captain's pay.

Mr. Hoover reports that the housing situation in the American and British zones is a disgrace. The average space among tens of millions "is equivalent to between three and four people to a 12 by 12 foot room" and multi-families are living in rubble and basements. BRINGING UP BABY

There are no hard-and-fast rules governing baby's eating hours. Most infants, at an early age, can get used to eating and sleeping at regular times. It's up to you to develop a schedule that suits your baby's particular needs.

The four-hour schedule has been found to suit many babies. Should your infant consistently wake up and cry with hunger at times other than those scheduled for feedings, consult the doctor about different feeding intervals.

Don't be slave to a schedule. What if 6:00 and 10:00 are the usual morning feeding times? If your sleepy baby wants to sleep until 7:00 or so once while, shift your routine accordingly.

A suggested daily schedule for your baby from birth to one year is just one of the valuable features of our new Reader Service booklet No. 203. It also includes chapters on diet, clothing, baths, toilet-training, good sleeping habits, weaning, preparing a formula, preventing accidents and diseases, caring for a sick baby.

Arguments Are Considered Hangover From New Deal as Concerns Position of U. S. Workers

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 17—A misguided campaign has been begun by labor leaders and some of the New Dealers in the administration to browbeat and intimidate Congress so that it will not pass legislation restricting the monopolies of labor unions.

Witness after witness from the labor side, as well as from the administration, predicts chaos and industrial strife if Congress dares to enact legislation banning the closed shop or prohibiting industry-wide bargaining or eliminating other devices whereby the economic system is dominated by labor groups.

The theory seems to be that in some way labor unions will strike against or disobey the laws of the United States. Such a ridiculous assumption could be brushed aside as meaningless were it not for the fact that it comes seriously from persons in high positions who ought to know better.

It is, in a sense, the residue of nearly a decade of special privileges which labor unions have fought their monopoly as some employers used to feel about their vested rights when they were interfered with by legislation that was designed to end exploitation of the worker.

The evidence is piling up that the rank and file of labor wants to be liberated from the yoke of the monopolists who carry on the lobbying campaigns supposedly in their behalf. Incidentally, the Truman administration, through its witnesses as exhibiting a double standard in favor of maintaining the special privileges and monopolies of labor unions.

The customary technique is to argue that the new laws will produce chaos or will be difficult to enforce. All the imaginary barriers are offered that are usually interposed whenever Congress tries to legislate reforms.

One of the most disappointing documents is that offered by the National Labor Relations Board, which has picked to pieces virtually every amendment suggested by Congress and has acknowledged that it considers it its duty to show a "bias" in favor of "collective bargaining."

This is not what Congress intended. The national legislature does not create commissions or boards or technical groups or "collective bargaining" are in

ALASKA NEEDS MEN

Veterans are hitting the trail to Alaska. Army contractors recently began advertising for them to go to Fairbanks and Anchorage to build $50,000,000 worth of Army installations.

One Seattle, Washington, firm—Birch, Johnson and Lytle—is recruiting 3,000, luring them with offers of guaranteed housing and subsistence at normal government rates, plus top wages and transportation to and from the point of hiring.

Journeyman carpenters, steam fitters, electricians, truck drivers, heavy equipment operators, mechanics and machinists are especially wanted, as are project managers, building construction superintendents and equipment purchasing agents and maintenance superintendents.

The offer doubtless will be snapped up by many a former G.I. The unfortunate thing about it is that the trek to our last frontier is only for jobs rather than to build permanent homes.

One of the most urgent needs of this period is the settlement of Alaska, as the weekly newspaper, Army Times, has been saying in a year-long campaign to rouse public sentiment and Congressional action. This land of great beauty and fertility, capable of supporting perhaps ten to twenty million people, with many a gleaming city, claims a population of only 73,000, of whom 10,000 are white and 33,000 native.

Divide that total into Alaska's area, 586,000 square miles, and you get about one person for every eight square miles.

We Could Lose It
This formula, as a matter of fact, doesn't give an accurate picture because a third of the population is concentrated in the eight largest towns (from Wrangell with 1,162 to Juneau with 5,728 inhabitants). Between these elements lie stretches of wilderness which can best be appreciated perhaps by reading Jack London's Call of the Wild—areas where you could dog-sled for a week without finding a man-made scar on nature's face.

If it is yet among us the hardy soul who is annoyed at the sound of his neighbor's axe, Alaska is just the place for him. Even our most sparsely settled state, Nevada, where every individual has a square mile to himself, is eight times as popular as the land that God forgot. Texas, with 6,415,000 people crowded into 267,000 square miles, is 200 times as thickly settled, and Rhode Island, with 713,000 on a strip of ground equal to 25 by 30 miles, is nearly 5,000 times as densely settled as Alaska.

These are stark facts of history, past and future, who warn that we stand to lose that rich and strategically tempting stretch of North America unless we settle it up. Their thesis has ample grounds for serious consideration without mentioning the real threat of the Soviets that Russia may someday refuse to recognize the deal in which we bought the territory in 1867.

It is disappointing to find that few veterans have migrated to this beckoning new subcontinent. A government land office spokesman says rich tracts are available for homesteading—for the hardy and the experienced. Some farms, already cleared and developed, also are for sale or lease by the government in the Matanuska valley.

Will Pay Dividends
That valley project, by the way, finally has come of age despite its unfortunate W.P.A. beginnings in which many of its original colonists were not well selected for the particular undertaking. Some of the original settlers made the grade. Others gave way to a long list of successors before one made good on a particular tract. While the federal government spent far too many coon skins on the project, it at least proves today that once a good Alaska farm is developed and in qualified hands, it will render substantial returns. Vegetables grow lush and bring a fancy price, as do poultry and dairy products since Alaskans have to import most of their food.

The Army needs several million people in Alaska to develop communities, roads, railroads, farms, communication systems and power lines, and to maintain these facilities. The federal government needs several million more taxpayers to help carry the load of public debt. The forty-eight states need another member in the family; and the world needs the food and commerce which could spring out of Alaskan soil.

Our government can well afford to pioneer in Alaska.

EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT

The American Red Cross is "The Greatest Mother in the World," declares Miss Beatie Bogert, of Hurley, a Red Cross worker who served both in this country and overseas, in an interview which appears elsewhere in this issue.

This interview with a worker who gives an eye-witness account of what the Red Cross has done and what it still has to do should stir every man and woman in Ulster County, who has neglected to subscribe to the Red Cross, to send in a pledge or contribution without any further delay.

Particularly important is the stressing of the vital work to be done by the Red Cross, since not a few have felt that with the war over need for funds is not so great. That this is a mistaken viewpoint and that the need remains is brought out forcefully in the interview.

Besides the peacetime service of the Red Cross when fire, flood, hurricane or epidemic strikes, much of the money contributed in this current campaign will go to aid soldiers and service folks and their families.

Knowing what the Red Cross has done and what it has yet to do, we should wait not longer but give generously now.

Ulster County's quota is $28,000. To date approximately $14,000 or one-half has been contributed.

One of the main benefits of having different political parties in this country is that it develops our characters. But what if, like some countries, we had thirty?

FEW GIVE-AWAY BABIES

There is a shortage of babies available for adoption. Public and private adoption agencies report the same situation in most parts of the country; long lists of would-be parents and not enough babies to meet the demand. In some agencies the requests for foster children are so numerous that the staff cannot keep up with the preliminary interviews of prospective parents. The adoption business has reached maximum heights since the close of the war and the return of veterans make it possible to count on a stable home set up. Oddly enough the housing scarcity seems not to have dulled the enthusiasm for acquisition of homeless children.

What a pleasant commentary these facts are on human nature. At this time in the world's history when there is so much to challenge the security of the home, so many obstacles and such heavy expenses connected with ordinary living, at such a time childless couples are clamoring to take on the responsibility of children not their own. It is good, also, that with no shortage of babies, people want to keep their own.

Crime breeds war and war breeds crime, but somehow there ought to be an end of it.

OLD NAMES DISAPPEARING

Some fine old names are disappearing from the map. Towns along the Dalmatian coast which bore Venetian names now see them replaced by Yugoslav equivalents, to emphasize the change in rule. Spalato, noted for its palace of the Roman emperor Diocletian, now gets the far uglier name of Split.

A large gap is left by the abolition of the old name Ragusa. Founded in the 3d century, Ragusa was long a link between Slavic and Italian civilizations. It managed to keep its independence, even when the Turks had overthrown Ragusa's far stronger neighbors, the Byzantine empire and the kingdom of Serbia. From Ragusan merchant ships the English language gets the name "argosy", once spelled "ragusy", applied to a large boat carrying rich freight. Now Ragusa is to be renamed from the neighboring Slavic settlement of Dubrovnik.

This emphasis on the importance of having a city's name come from the language of its new rulers surprises Americans, who change

THE RIGHT TO STRIKE

Whenever any group in a free society takes excessive advantage of its legal rights to the disadvantage of the whole of society, legislative action becomes imperative to safeguard the nation from anarchy. Usually, as with American corporations, the group evading reason in pursuit of legal rights brings it woes upon itself.

This is precisely what has happened to the labor unions, particularly the C.I.O., which insisted upon rights without assuming obligations or responsibility.

The right to strike is as inviolable as the right of freedom of speech or of the press only so long as it does not limit the constitutional rights of others and only so long as it does not convert a free society into an anarchy. Obviously, a nation that will expend over $300,000,000,000 of its wealth to defend its sovereign integrity will not permit the collapse of its productive structure because its laws grant to a segment of the population special privileges. What legislative action can grant, legislative action can revoke.

That, in essence, is what has been happening to labor's special privilege during the past months, strengthened by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the John L. Lewis case. The issue there was clearly whether any law had transferred the authority of the courts to the United Mine Workers and to John L. Lewis personally. What the SEC did to Wall Street, current legislation will do to the unions. And on the whole, it will be beneficial because it will place moral restraints upon those who are incapable of restraining themselves. A free society prefers self-restraint to enforced restraints, but we insist upon the latter should the former be in default.

The legislation of the State of New York has inevitably passed the Condon-Wadlin Bill placing full responsibility upon the workers for a strike in a government-owned enterprise, such as the schools, the police, the subway, etc. This measure does not forbid the strike, for obviously no one can be forced to work in a free society. But it gives the state the right automatically to dismiss those who strike, to refuse to increase the pay of the strikers in the event they are rehired and to make them ineligible for pay increases for three years thereafter. These workers may strike if they choose, but the responsibility is theirs. They can no longer strike and be paid for it. They can no longer strike and receive compensation for loss of time in any form, including retroactive pay.

This is sound law. It is a result of the excesses to which labor unions have gone in coercing governments to abide by their private decisions. It is also an inevitable concomitant of socialism. As long as industry is privately-owned, the rights of ownership, management and labor are private and disturbances of those rights are judicable, but once industry is publicly-owned, ownership involves the sovereignty of the state and every strike becomes a revolutionary action against the state. There are no strikes for this reason in Soviet Russia, where interruption of work is regarded as political sabotage and a strike comes under the category of counter-revolution. All totalitarian countries assumed a similar logical position.

Increased public ownership of the means of production and distribution and the services will narrow the field in which strikes are possible. For instance, a strike against Consolidated Edison is still a private matter between a private company and a union, but a strike against TVA would involve the sovereign powers of the United States.

But even a strike against a public service becomes too costly and dangerous in our society. The threatened nationwide telephone strike, scheduled for April, will not take place, for obviously the government will, immediately, even if special legislation is required, take over the telephone companies.

There is a domain in which the strike cannot be tolerated any more than murder can be tolerated. The "pursuit of happiness" may assume the right to murder, but no law acknowledged that freedom to control the restraint of moral responsibility is either practical or possible. Similarly, the "right to strike" does not warrant the assumption that the country can be wrecked at the will of the wreckers. The principles involved are altogether clear.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE

You hear and read much about high blood pressure and how it may cause a head stroke (apoplexy) and heart stroke (coronary occlusion or thrombosis) but you do not often hear or read much about low blood pressure, yet low blood pressure with its symptoms is not uncommon.

High blood pressure is called hypertension and low blood pressure is called hypotension. Neither hypertension nor hypotension is called a disease; they are simply symptoms of some disturbance or disturbances, mild or severe. And, just as hypertension or increased blood pressure can be caused by the emotions or be due to an acute or chronic infection so also can low blood pressure, hypotension.

It is true that low blood pressure is a normal condition in some families the members of which live to a good old age, but they are the exceptions. Generally speaking low blood pressure is one symptom of a run down or weak condition.

In Clinical Medicine, S. Watson Smith, M.D., Consultant Physician, The Royal Victoria and West Hants Hospital, Bournemouth, England, describes the symptoms of low blood pressure or hypotension: 1. Dizziness on change of position such as rising from a lying or sitting position occurring suddenly, with a feeling of fear and loss of self confidence. 2. Asthenic (weakness) attacks when, perhaps for the space of hours of a day, feelings of weakness overcome the patient, depriving him of physical but not mental strength. 3. Inability to remain standing beyond minutes without bringing on faintness, pallor, sweating, nausea and even loss of consciousness. 4. Poor circulation, inability to withstand the cold. 5. Pulsations of the heart beat felt in hands and feet. 6. The symptoms are common in young and middle-aged men of slender build, steady and competent though not aggressive; not found in overweight, women, or the laboring man.

7. Need much rest. In regard to treatment Dr. Smith suggests the wearing of an abdominal belt or snug corset while the underlying cause—thin blood, infection, some disease of the system, emotional disturbances—is sought and necessary treatment given. Iron is the only medicine prescribed. Remember, low blood pressure is a symptom, not a disease.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Herbert Hoover's restrained report on the horrors inflicted on the German people in the American and British occupation zones reveals the United States in the role of a barbarian conqueror, even more brutal in victory today than the military and political, northern forces were eighty years ago in the beaten Confederate States. The people of the United States up to this time had had only a vague, though guilty apprehension, of the conditions which Mr. Hoover found.

A review is supplemented in a manner to humiliate Americans by a feature story published recently in the Saturday Evening Post by a young American woman, the wife of an army captain stationed in Berlin, who reveals a disgraceful condition of mere poverty contrasted with the looting by a few Americans. This officer's pay is $525 a month. They live in a furnished, 9-room house amid three million "slowly starving Germans in a city nearly 50 per cent destroyed. They have fresh meat seven days a week, milk and one and one-half tons of coal a month and gas and electricity without limit. And they are saving nearly three fifths of the captain's pay.

Mr. Hoover reports that the housing situation in the German and British zones is the worst that modern civilization has ever seen. The average space among tens of millions "is equivalent to between three and four people to a 12 by 12 foot room" and multitudes are living in rubble and basements. Tuberculosis is spreading rapidly.

The young American woman reports that a German couple are allowed only 200 pounds of coal for the whole winter in Berlin. This would be bad enough but Mr. Hoover says that in Hamburg no coal has been issued since October and that other German cities have been little better off.

He reports, in this coldest of winters, the coal shortage has been so bad that there has been a "lack of heat, even for cooking" the starvation diet that we allow them.

Mr. Hoover confined himself to facts with no expression of "humanitarian feelings for this mass of people." The captain's wife permits herself a few expressions of conscience, but she says they like it there because they can save so much money. She tells us that the German woman who gives her little boy piano lessons "refuses to name her price" but has asked for a bottle of ink, a bottle of hand lotion and black thread. She mentions no regulation which would forbid this frugal pair to name a price, themselves as a fair one at that, and to insist on paying, to the slight diminution of their savings of nearly $300 a month.

Officers are allotted two maids to a billet, plus a combination fireman-gardener. Servants get eight cents an hour for a 60-hour week, or $4.80 a week, and even these miserable wages are not paid by the American men and women who enjoy these services. They are included in the "rent assessment" of not more than $120 a month in a city where the cost of living is absorbed in the occupation costs Germany must some day repay to the Allies.

Of course Germany never will repay these occupation costs and they are now being paid by the American tax-payers. The pretense that the Germans someday will pay them is a fiction to conceal an undeserved subsidy to the members of an army of occupation who trade cartons of cigarettes obtained at a heavy discount for "the finest Persian carpets."

"Many higher-up army officers and military government officials have, in addition to their modest 30- or 20-room houses, a sumptuous lakeside villa for week-ends."

All this is consistent with the ethics of the New Deal parasites who occupied exclusive and secluded villas in the national parks at "very moderate" rentals and at public expense and, for several years, converted the officers quarters at the abandoned Key West naval station in Senator Claude Pepper's domain, into a secret vacation resort. But it violently mocks those "humanitarian feelings" which Mr. Hoover had only to mention in passing to remind us that we are trying to convert the abominable hun by hunnishness.

Anyone who would try to justify all this by citing the Nazis' own treatment of conquered peoples thereby embraces one of the worst phases of Hitlerism. Moreover, the people of the United States never intended that in their name, generals and self-indulgent officials of the military government should be allowed to install themselves in mansions and week-end villas or that captains should be quartered and kept in a condition of luxury far beyond their own due and accustomed condition of life and the beyond standard. It all shows a low and brutal selfishness and the moral unfitness for their jobs of the officers and others who establish this shameful system. The officers should be brought home, reduced and retired if not dismissed. The civilian brass should be fired.

If it were necessary—and the necessity is not conceded—that soldiers on foreign duty should have their families with them, then decency and even the faintest understanding of the mission of the occupation should have required that the persons should conduct themselves in a way to arouse the respect of the German people, not their legitimate contempt for an army of hypocrites. The young woman who wrote the story is not to blame. She and her husband merely accepted conditions created for them by men higher up, who may know better but lacked the character to resist temptation. We have better men available who would choose to live on luxuries in the sight of starving people. The job calls for consecration, not vanity.

The attempt to discriminate between Nazis and non-Nazis is dishonest in all persons who, here at home, have upheld compulsory conscription that were put upon their own people by the New Deal. Many Germans held out and joined the Nazi Party only in desperation for exactly the same reasons which millions of Americans joined the C.I.O. They had to join or starve. Many German business men joined for the same reasons which, in this country, silenced Republican and the 1944 campaign or drove uncommitted business men into the New Deal.

In New York, business men learned that they had better keep their mouths shut if they were against Roosevelt. Men who wanted contracts and materials, who wanted to avoid union troubles and tax troubles learned that the way to success and peace was to keep still or establish connections with the political agents of the bureaucracy. Many registered as Democrats who were secretly Republicans. The Nazis were franker about it and more brutal. To condemn a German merely because the records show that he contributed money to the party is to condemn those Americans who were ordered by their unions to donate a dollar or a day's pay to Roosevelt's 1944 campaign under penalty of dismissal for refusal.

Every intelligent German knows, of course, that Russia was an aggressor nation in Finland and Poland, in collusion with Hitler, and that Stalin followed in the Baltic countries precisely the system that Hitler had used in Austria. Now they have seen the American swarms into their country, prattling "democracy" and looting like free booters and the more despicably because it is all done with a pretense that we are not thieves but buying when we offer in exchange for Persian carpets, cigarettes obtained at seven cents a package which may be traded, in turn, at the black markets which we tolerate, for food for starving children.

ALASKA NEEDS MEN
Veterans are hitting the trail to Alaska. Army contractors recently began advertising for them to go to Fairbanks and Anchorage to build $59,000,000 worth of Army installations.

One Seattle, Washington, firm—Birch, Johnson and Lytle—is recruiting 3,000, luring them with offers of guaranteed housing and subsistence at normal government rates, plus top wages and transportation to and from the point of hiring.

Journeyman carpenters, steam fitters, electricians, truck drivers, heavy equipment operators, mechanics and machinists are especially wanted, as are project managers, building construction superintendents and equipment purchasing agents.

The offer doubtless will be snapped up by many a former G.I. The unfortunate thing about it is that the trek to our last frontier is only for jobs rather than to build permanent homes.

One of the most urgent needs of this period is the settlement of Alaska, as the weekly newspaper, Army Times, has been saying in a year-long campaign to rouse public sentiment and Congressional action. This land of great beauty and fertility, capable of supporting perhaps ten to twenty million people, with many a gleaming city, claims a population of only 73,000, of whom 40,000 are white and 33,000 native.

Divide that total into Alaska's area, 586,000 square miles, and you get about one person for every eight square miles.

We Could Lose It
This formula, as a matter of fact, doesn't give an accurate picture because a third of the population is concentrated in the eight largest towns (from Wrangell with 1,162 to Juneau with 5,729 inhabitants). Between these settlements lie stretches of wilderness which can best be appreciated perhaps by reading Jack London's Call of the Wild—areas where you could dog-sled for a week without finding a man-made scar on nature's face.

If there is yet among us the hardy soul who is annoyed at the sound of his neighbor's axe, Alaska is just the place for him. Even our most sparsely settled state, Nevada, where every individual has a square mile to himself, is eight times as popular as Nevada. The effect of the statistics which the Labor Board attempts now to minimize has been coercive and has done more to promote bad feeling between employees and their employers than any other single factor in labor-management relations today.

Such vaguely written statutes without meaning and definition. The American people will ultimately sanction far more drastic laws to amend the Wagner Act than are now being proposed if the threats being made by the New Deal group and the Labor Union Lobby are not soon eliminated and replaced by a constructive course adopted.

Veterans are hitting the trail to Alaska. Army contractors recently began advertising for them to go to Fairbanks and Anchorage to build $59,000,000 worth of Army installations.

One Seattle, Washington, firm—Birch, Johnson and Lytle—is recruiting 3,000, luring them with offers of guaranteed housing and subsistence at normal government rates, plus top wages and transportation to and from the point of hiring.

Journeyman carpenters, steam fitters, electricians, truck drivers, heavy equipment operators, mechanics and machinists are especially wanted, as are project managers, building construction superintendents and equipment purchasing agents.

The offer doubtless will be snapped up by many a former G.I. The unfortunate thing about it is that the trek to our last frontier is only for jobs rather than to build permanent homes.

One of the most urgent needs of this period is the settlement of Alaska, as the weekly newspaper, Army Times, has been saying in a year-long campaign to rouse public sentiment and Congressional action. This land of great beauty and fertility, capable of supporting perhaps ten to twenty million people, with many a gleaming city, claims a population of only 73,000, of whom 40,000 are white and 33,000 native.

Divide that total into Alaska's area, 586,000 square miles, and you get about one person for every eight square miles.

We Could Lose It
This formula, as a matter of fact, doesn't give an accurate picture because a third of the population is concentrated in the eight largest towns (from Wrangell with 1,162 to Juneau with 5,729 inhabitants). Between these settlements lie stretches of wilderness which can best be appreciated perhaps by reading Jack London's Call of the Wild—areas where you could dog-sled for a week without finding a man-made scar on nature's face.

If there is yet among us the hardy soul who is annoyed at the sound of his neighbor's axe, Alaska is just the place for him. Even our most sparsely settled state, Nevada, where every individual has a square mile to himself, is eight times as popular as Nevada. The effect of the statistics which the Labor Board attempts now to minimize has been coercive and has done more to promote bad feeling between employees and their employers than any other single factor in labor-management relations today.

Such vaguely written statutes without meaning and definition. The American people will ultimately sanction far more drastic laws to amend the Wagner Act than are now being proposed if the threats being made by the New Deal group and the Labor Union Lobby are not soon eliminated and replaced by a constructive course adopted.

Ward's to Conduct
Cooking SchoolWill Be Held Afternoons
From March 19 to 29

Housewives who are interested in familiarizing themselves with the best and most approved methods of cooking by electricity at a minimum of expense will doubtless welcome the announcement that Montgomery Ward & Co. will conduct at 10-days' electric cooking school at their Kingston store.

The school, which will be held in the housewares department in the basement of the Ward store, will open on the afternoon of Wednesday, March 19 and will continue through to March 29, each afternoon except Saturdays. The school will be open from 2 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Miss Dorothy Rhodes, home service representative of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., an expert on cookery who is well known to many in this area, will conduct the school.

Using Ward Co.'s own electric range, the Nesco Chef range, Miss Rhodes will demonstrate a different type of cooking each day, so that those who decide to attend each afternoon of the school will be equipped at its close to put up a varied menu of tempting dishes. They also will learn which there are numerous ways in which the housewife can save money through economical use of current.

During the school, which is open to the general public, the Ward store will have a display of electrical cooking devices to meet every household need.

MacArthur Proposes Early End of Japan's OccupationGeneral Would Begin Peace Negotiations Soon; Asks U. N. Be Given Job

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, March 17 (AP)—General MacArthur today advocated an early end of the military occupation of Japan and elimination of Allied headquarters position under a formal peace treaty on which negotiations should begin "as soon as possible."

"Control and guidance" of Japan's democratization should then continue under supervision of the United Nations, MacArthur told correspondents in his first on-the-record press conference since early in the war.

He declined to specify when he thought peace negotiations should begin, but indicated he believed it should be within a matter of months at the longest. He likewise declined to speculate on the probable length of additional supervision.

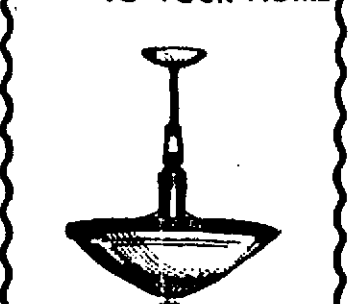

MacArthur said if the United Nations cannot provide the mild control needed for Japan, the U. N. cannot meet any challenge.

gress attach a "please repay" tag to a proposed $350,000,000 expenditure for relief in several European countries was before the House Foreign Affairs Committee today as it studied legislation to authorize the outlay.

When the committee clears this measure, Chairman Eaton (R-N.J.) said it will be ready to act on the Greek-Turkey aid proposal, which he planned to introduce today.

In the Senate, Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich.), of the Foreign Relations Committee continued to compile questions on all phases of the program to be put on top ranking government officials at public hearings.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), announced that he wants to ask military leaders what they consider to be the chances of war with Russia if the United States carries out its plan in the Mediterranean. Taft said he thinks such questions will have to be answered behind closed doors.

Swinging the spotlight half-way around the globe, Rep. Gearhart (R-Calif.), called for time on the house floor to tell his colleagues that Russia "is looking at Alaska with covetous eyes" by voicing claims that the 1867 purchase arrangement was illegal.

There have been Soviet contentions, the California lawmaker told newsmen in advance of his speech, that the $7,200,000 purchase price "was in reality but reimbursement of expenses incurred by the then Czar in sending his fleets to New York and San Francisco in 1862" to dissuade the British and French from siding with the confederacy in the Civil War.

Gearhart said he planned to ask the State Department anew whether Moscow has been seeking return of the territory. He noted the department already has disclaimed knowledge of any such maneuver but added:

"We were told that there were no secret agreements made during the Yalta and Tehran conferences. Later we learned to our amazement that our leaders had in fact made secret agreements of colossal importance."

Three Minor Fires Are Reported Over Week-End

Local firemen checked three minor fires over the week-end, the most serious being a fuel oil blaze at 288 Broadway.

Heavy smoke from the fuel oil fire in the basement of the Broadway house owned by George Love filled the structure, but the blaze was checked before it caused any other damage, according to the fire department.

Occupants of three apartments in the building are Mrs. James Kenney, Lionel Harrington and Mrs. Mabel Fisher.

The firemen also checked a rubbish fire at Prospect street and Greenwich avenue at 2:55 this morning and a grass fire at 532 Delaware avenue at 1:59 a. m., Saturday.

William H. Jordan of 113 Spring street, who was fighting the grass fire at 532 Delaware avenue, was new location of the Veterans of Foreign Wars post, when the firemen were called said today that he had suffered no serious consequences as a result of a brief contact with flames. His hair was slightly singed, he said, but he suffered no burns.

Legislature Will

tend from four to three and one-half times the previous year's tax contribution, but only if the present factors used in determining the rate of rebate were unchanged. The Senate is expected to pass tonight and send to the governor the Assembly-approved Wilson-Pakula bill prohibiting a member of one party from running in the primary of another party without the consent of the appropriate official committee of the second party.

The bill is aimed at barring "raids" on one party by members of another. For example, Rep. Vito Marcantone, American Laborite of Manhattan, would be barred from running in the Democratic and Republican primaries unless he obtained majority approval of the party committee in his congressional district.

Salary increases, ranging up to approximately $5,000 are reported provided for department heads and other administrative personnel in the supplemental budget bill to be introduced tonight.

Governor Dewey favors the increases on the ground of equity. He feels that several of his "cabinet" officers have been making financial sacrifices by working for $13,000 a year and that they could do much better in private employment. He feels that their "loyalty" in remaining in state service should be rewarded to some extent.

Planning Program
Home Bureau groups all over the country are devoting March business meetings to a consideration of next year's program. Requests are gathered from individual homemakers, presented to the unit to see whether they are of general interest and, if so, added to the list to be submitted at a county-wide program planning meeting on April 11.

Each homemaker is urged to study her needs and make them known at the next meeting of her group.

Home Bureau study clubs are making their choice of study courses for next year during this month. A new list of courses on child development and family relationships prepared at the College of Home Economics at Cornell is now available at the Home Bureau office.

Amendments Hold Up U. S. Proposal On Pacific Islands

Lake Success, N. Y., March 17

(AP)—The United States proposal to take over the Japanese-managed islands under United Nations trusteeship snagged on a series of amendments in the Security Council today.

Delegates who once believed that approval might be speedy met again to hear statements from New Zealand, India, The Netherlands and the Philippines and to wade through a series of suggested changes from Russia, Australia and Great Britain.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate already has directly or indirectly turned down all the amendments, leading observers to predict an extended debate. In addition the four countries giving statements were expected to suggest some more changes.

The proposed agreement to place the Pacific island chains under a "strategic area" trusteeship with the United States as sole administration would amount to virtual annexation. Regardless of the United States will remain on the islands, comprising the Marshalls, Carolines and Marianas and including such wartime bases as Saipan, Tinian, Truk, Eniwetok, Kwajalein and Majuro.

The amendments already on the table include these:
Russia—Wants the council itself to have the right to amend or alter the agreement and not the United States alone as provided.

Great Britain—Seeks equal economic rights for all U.N. members in the area and not preference for the United States in administering authority. Also that provisions be written into the agreement making it mandatory for the United States to notify the council when it closes the islands.

Australia—Would add an article making the islands subject to later confirmation by the Japanese peace conference.

England and Italy
Announce Time Changes

London, March 17 (AP)—Britain moved its clocks forward one hour today under a daylight savings program begun earlier than usual this year to conserve power as a result of the industrial tie-up which paralyzed British industry this winter. (The change makes British time six hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time.)

On April 13 double summer time starts and clocks will be moved forward another hour. On August 10 the time will be set back an hour and clocks will be set back the second hour on November 2.

Italy went on summer time yesterday, putting its clocks seven hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time.

Pennsylvania Teachers Plan Capital 'March'

Harrisburg, Pa., March 17 (AP)—

Scores of Pennsylvania's unionized teachers, representing educators from many sections of the Keystone State, "march" on the capital today to support demands for higher salaries.

Mrs. Esther Soler, secretary of the C.I.O.-Philadelphia Teachers Union, said a 10-member committee of the "marchers" would first discuss the wage boost proposals with Gov. James H. Duff then meet in a state legislative caucus room to discuss plans "to buttonhole each legislator individually to tell them what we want."

The problem of increasing teacher salaries is one of the chief issues confronting the 1947 general assembly. Today's planned demonstration was termed "a question-approach" to the wage question by State Rep. E. Raymond Sollenberger, Blair county Republican and chairman of the House Education Committee.

"I disagree with their methods and do not condone them," Sollenberger declared. A school teacher himself, he is co-author of a bill to raise minimum teachers' salaries $1,000 annually from $1,400 to $2,400.

Margaret Truman Emerges Singer In Critics' Views

By JOHN F. MAYHEW

Detroit, March 17 (AP)—Margaret Truman, 23-year-old daughter of the President, today looked back on a "big thrill"—her triumphant debut as soprano soloist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

A host of tributes, including praise from Conductor Karl Krueger, greeted the youthful coloratura's appearance last night on a coast-to-coast broadcast.

She planned to return to Washington sometime today with her singing teacher, Mrs. Margaret Armstrong Strickler, and "rest before making any plans."

Krueger termed the young blonde singer a "real trouper," praising the ease with which she surmounted pressure built up by such a prominent debut, last week's postponement of the performance due to laryngitis, nerve-wracking rehearsals and her position as daughter of the President.

"I am very proud to have had a share in launching a career I am sure will be successful and distinguished," Krueger said.

Mrs. Strickler declared herself "completely satisfied" with the performance of her protegee, and added, "I think she's going places."

The President was quick to telephone congratulations to his daughter from Key West, Fla., where he is resting.

Awaiting her cue last night on the Sunday Evening Hour program in Detroit's Music Hall, Miss Truman sat quietly onstage, formally dressed in blue.

Mid-way in the program, which was broadcast over ABC to an estimated 15,000,000 listeners, she sang with considerable poise and sang "Cello Lando" by Fadhla, then David's difficult "Charmant Oiseau" from the opera "Pearl of Brazil" and concluded with a request from her father, "The Last Rose of Summer."

Detroit music critics commented that Miss Truman's "was true and well-controlled," but noted "one or two lapses from pitch." They agreed that her talent was evident despite her inexperience.

As for Miss Truman herself, she considered it a "big thrill," and said she "enjoyed every minute of it."

An authoritative source set Miss Truman's fee for the concert at "at least $1,000, perhaps $1,500." The exact sum, he said, "would probably be decided upon sometime today."

13 Bodies Recovered From Plane Wreckage

Grenoble, France, March 17 (AP)—

With 13 bodies already recovered, searchers planned to resume their hunt today for other victims of the crash of an airliner, which was wrecked 25 miles south of here Friday with 23 persons aboard.

The search was abandoned temporarily yesterday, for fear of avalanches.

The plane, bound from Nice to Paris, hit a cliff on 7,000-foot Mount Moucherolle, causing an avalanche which buried the wreckage.

Three Minor Fires Are Reported Over Week-End

Local firemen checked three minor fires over the week-end the most serious being a fuel oil blaze at 288 Broadway.

Heavy smoke from the fuel oil fire in the basement of the Broadway house owned by George Lowe filled the structure, but the blaze was checked before it caused any other damage, according to the fire department.

Occupants of three apartments in the building are Mrs. James Kenney, Lionel Harrington and Mrs. Mabel Fisher.

The firemen also checked a rubbish fire at Prospect street and Greenkill avenue at 2:55 this morning and a grass fire at 552 Delaware avenue at 1:59 a. m., Saturday.

William H. Jordan of 113 Spring street, who was fighting the grass fire at 552 Delaware avenue, the new location of the Veterans of Foreign Wars post, when the firemen were called, said today that he had suffered no serious consequences as a result of a brief contact with flames. His hair was slightly singed, he said, but he suffered no burns.

fund from four to three and one-half times the previous year's tax contribution, but only if the present factors used in determining the rate of rebate were unchanged. The Senate is expected to pass tonight and send to the governor the Assembly-approved Wilson Pakula bill prohibiting a member of one party from running in the primary of another party without the consent of the appropriate official committee of the second party.

The bill is aimed at barring "raids" on one party by members of another. For example, Rep. Vito Marcantino, American Laborite of Manhattan, would be barred from running in the Democratic and Republican primaries unless he obtained majority approval of the party committees in his congressional district.

Salary increases ranging up to approximately $5,000 are reported provided for department heads and other administrative personnel in the supplemental budget bill to be introduced tonight.

Governor Dewey favors the increases on the ground of equity. He feels that several of his "cabinet" officers have been making financial sacrifices by working for $3,000 a year and that they could do much better in private employment. He feels that their "loyalty" in remaining in state service should be rewarded to some extent.

Amendments Hold Up U. S. Proposal On Pacific Islands

Lake Success, N. Y., March 17 (AP)—The United States proposal to take over the Japanese-mandated islands under United Nations trusteeship snagged on a series of amendments in the Security Council today.

Delegates who once believed that approval might be speedy met again to hear statements from New Zealand, India, The Netherlands and the Philippines and to wade through a series of suggested changes from Russia, Australia and Great Britain.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate, already has directly or indirectly turned down all the amendments, leading observers to predict an extended debate. In addition the four countries giving statements were expected to suggest some more changes.

The proposed agreement to place the Pacific island chains under a "strategic area" trusteeship with the United States as sole administration would amount to virtual annexation. Regardless of delays the United States will remain on the islands, comprising the Marshalls, Carolines and Marianas and including such wartime bases as Saipan, Tinian, Truk, Eniwetok, Kwajalein and Majuro.

The amendments already on the table include these:
Russia—Wants the council itself to have the right to amend or alter the agreement and not the United States alone as provided.
Great Britain—Seeks equal economic rights for all U.N. members in the area and not preference for the United States as administering authority. Also that provisions be written into the agreement making it mandatory for the United States to notify the council when it closes the islands.

Australia—Would add an article making the agreement subject to later confirmation by the Japanese peace conference.

England and Italy
Announce Time Changes

London, March 17 (AP)—Britain moved its clocks forward one hour today under a daylight savings program begun earlier than usual this year to conserve power as a result of the industrial tie-up which paralyzed British industry this winter. (The change makes British time six hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time.)

On April 13 double summer time starts and clocks will be moved forward another hour. On August 10 the time will be set back an hour and clocks will be set back the second hour on November 2.

Italy went on summer time yesterday, putting its clocks seven hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time.

Pennsylvania Teachers Plan Capital 'March'

Harrisburg, Pa., March 17 (AP)—Scores of Pennsylvania's unionized teachers, representing educators from many sections of the Keystone State, "march" on the capital today to support demands for higher salaries.

Mrs. Esther Soler, secretary of the C.I.O.-Philadelphia Teachers Union, said a 10-member committee of the "marchers" would first discuss the wage boost proposals with Gov. James H. Duff then meet in a state legislature caucus room to discuss plans "to buttonhole each legislator individually to tell them what we want."

The problem of increasing teacher salaries is one of the chief issues confronting the 1947 general assembly. Today's planned demonstration was termed "a question-able approach" to the wage question by State Rep. D. Raymond Sollenberger, Blair county Republican and chairman of the House Education Committee.

"I disagree with their methods and do not condone them," Sollenberger declared. A school teacher himself, he is co-author of a bill to raise minimum teachers' salaries $1,000 annually from $1,400 to $2,400.
